EPHRAIM AND THE BEAR.

How He Killed a Yearling in a Fair Fight Without Weapons.

Old Ephraim Hatfield, father of Anse and Elias Hatfield, of McCoy-Hatfield fame, was a born fighter. He was also a mighty hunter, and had one ambition. It was to kill a yearling bear in a fair fight without any weapons other than those nature provided him with. Every day that he felt especially strong he would go out with his dogs and his boys, and, tracing a bear, would get him down and fight him. When brain would begin to get the best of the encounter, he would call his boys to let loose the dogs. Year after year passed and Ephraim had not yet whipped a bear.

One day a fine yearling bear was treed, and as Guffy was climbing to a place of safety old man Hatfield cut off a piece of the animal's tail with a quick blow of his knife, and the bear came down. Ephraim threw his gun and knives to the boys and cried out: "He's a likely varmint. Stand aside, boys, and watch yo' dad. I'm comin', bar!" And he clutched the bear by the throat.

The animal got its paws around Ephraim, and they fought, rolling in every direction, until it was almost impossible to distinguish man from beast in the cloud. The boys held the dogs and encouraged the old man by shouting to him:

"Go it, pap! You've got 'em! Give it to 'im, dad!"

Down the hill the two rolled until they could roll no farther.

"Let loose the dogs!" shouted the old man. "Let 'em loose! The critter's got me!"

But the boys thought the old man would never have a better opportunity to realize his ambition and whip a yearling bear and kept the dogs away. Finally Ephraim, seeing that he was not to have assistance, began to use his feet and hands with an energy born of despair, and in half an hour he succeeded in choking the animal to death, but not until his clothes were torn to shreds and his face and body were covered with gaping wounds, from which the blood flowed so freely that it left a crimson trail wherever the man went. Dragging the carcass out of the pit Ephraim started after the boys, and it would have fared roughly with them, but they fled. The old man reached his home and was almost dead from loss of blood, but his ambition had been realized—he had whipped a yearling bear in a fair fight. The boys hid out in the woods for several days, and would not return until their father, whose joy at his success had got the better of his pain and anger, sent them word that he would not whip them if they returned. Hatfield never worried telling how he whipped a yearling bear, and his sons are equally proud of their father's achievement.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A GAME OF NINEPINS.

A Marchen-like Story of a Beheaded German Criminal.

In an imperial city lately a criminal was condemned to be beheaded who had a singular itching to play at ninepins. While his sentence was pronouncing he had the temerity to offer a request to be permitted to play once more at his favorite game at the place of execution, and then he said he would submit without a murmur.

As the last prayer of a dying man his request was granted. When arrived at the solemn spot he found everything prepared, the pins being set up and the bowl ready. He played with no little earnestness, but the sheriff at length, seeing that he showed no inclination to desist, privately ordered the executioner to strike the fatal blow as he stooped for the bowl.

The executioner did so, and the head dropped into the culprit's hand as he raised himself to see what had occurred. He immediately aimed at the nine, conceiving that it was the bowl which he grasped. All nine falling, the head loudly exclaimed, "I have won the game!"—From the German.

His Account With His Dentist.

Brown has the reputation of being one of the most miserly of men, but he plumes himself on his inextinguishable sense of justice. For 15 years he owed a dentist $22 for filling a front tooth with gold, refusing to pay it because he said the bill was exorbitant. The other day the filling came out. He took the gold to a jewelry store and had it valued. Then he wrote to the dentist and inclosed a check for his account, based on the following computation: "Actual value of the gold, $3.50; amount of labor (which I deem liberal), $5; for use of the tooth 15 years, $5; total, $13.50. I return gold on account and inclose check for the balance, $10."—Washington Post.

Her Choice.

A woman who has traveled largely in Japan mentioned in the course of a lecture the fact that the Japanese language does not contain an impolite word; hence there is no swearing in that happy land. She also stated that osculation was an unknown pleasure. As the audience dispersed, commenting favorably upon different points, an old woman remarked in a voice loud enough to be heard by all, "Well, for my part, I prefer a country where they kiss and snarl!"—Atlanta Constitution.

TO PUT ON

needed flesh, no matter how you've lost it, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It works wonders. By restoring the normal action of the damaged organs and functions, it builds the flesh up to a safe and healthy standard—promptly, pleasantly and naturally. The weak, emaciated, thin, pale and puny are made strong, plump, round and rosy. Nothing so effective as a strength restorer and flesh maker is known to medical science; this puts on healthy flesh not the fat of cod liver oil and its filthy compounds. It rouses every organ of the body to activity, purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood so that the body feels refreshed and strengthened. If you are too thin, too weak, too nervous, it may be that the food assimilation is at fault. A certain amount of bile is necessary for the reception of the fat foods in the blood. Too often the liver holds back this element which would help digestion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery stimulates, tones up and invigorates the liver, nourishes the blood, and the muscles, stomach and nerves get the rich blood they require.

Spent Hundreds of Dollars with no Benefit.

M. J. COLEMAN of 33 Sargent St., Roxbury, Mass., writes: "After suffering from dyspepsia and constipation with unsteady nerves for at least 18 months, I am more than pleased to say that after using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets for one month, I was cured, and from that day to this I do not know, thank God, what even slight headache is. I paid a doctor on Tremont St., Boston, in one day (for his advice only) the sum of $100 with $50 for medicine, and derived no benefit. I got more relief in one hour from your medicines as far as my stomach was concerned, than from all the other medicine I used. If any person who reads this is suffering from dyspepsia or constipation and will use your medicine as I have done, he will never regret it."

PROTECTION TO FARMERS.

David Lubin of Sacramento, California, is a leader in the movement to protect agricultural staples by an export bounty. He contends that as a measure of equity in taxation the producers of agricultural staples are entitled to an export bounty as long as protection to manufacturers prevail. In response to a request of the American Protective Tariff League for a contribution to further the work of the league, Mr. Lubin placed in the hands of the President of the Bank of D. O. Mills & Co., Sacramento, $1,000, with instructions that the same be paid over to the Protective Tariff League, provided an impartially selected committee, of capable men would decide after a full hearing that a tariff on imports can protect the agricultural staples as long as the surplus is sold in the open markets of the world; or that a bounty on the exports of these staples would not be just so long as there is a tariff on imports for the protection of manufactures. The American Protective Tariff League in response to Mr. Lubin, announced that the offer would be submitted to its Executive Committee, but has, so far as known to Mr. Lubin taken no further action.

On September 4, 1895, a largely attended Interstate Harvest meeting was held at Marysville, Missouri, and by resolution unanimously adopted requested Hon. William McKinley of Ohio to show:

First, how a tariff on imports can protect the home market of agricultural staples as long as there is a surplus of those staples sold in the open markets of the world.

Second, if a bounty on the exports of these staples for their protection in the home market would not be as just and equitable as the tariff on imports for the protection of manufactures.

Third, if it be true that the tariff on imports protects the home market for manufactures, but cannot protect the home market of agricultural staples as long as there is a surplus for export, does it not follow, therefore, that the unprotected industry must foot the cost of protecting the protected industry?

As correct answers to these questions are of the highest importance to farmers, the industry they represent and the whole country the State Grange of Missouri earnestly renews the request made of Mr. McKinley and respectfully urges that the desired information be transmitted by him at the earliest possible date to the Secretary of the State Grange.

If the position taken by Mr. Lubin is correct, the farmer, whose surplus products must be sold, if sold at all, in the open markets of the world, must pay the cost of protecting the protected industries. For instance, the farmers of Truckee Meadows and of Lovelock must sell their surplus wheat at Liverpool prices less the cost of transportation, insurance, commission, etc., and derive no benefit whatever from a tariff. On the contrary they have to pay the increased price on the protected articles which they consume. If that be true, and it certainly seems to be, the farmer is injured by a protective tariff and ought to be recompensed by an export bounty on what he produces. As Major McKinley and the American Protective Tariff League are assumed to be thoroughly versed in the laws governing protection, one or both should enlighten the people by replying to Mr. Lubin or the State Grange which has embodied his ideas in the above resolutions. If farmers, whose surplus products have to be exported to find a market, are benefitted by a protective tariff on the clothing they wear and the implements they use in cultivating the soil, the American Protective Tariff League, Major McKinley or some other capable organization or person ought to show them "where the benefit comes in."

ADMISSION DAY.

Thirty-one years ago to-day, in the heat of the rebellion, Nevada was admitted into the Union as a sovereign State by proclamation of Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States. The now much despised silver mines, the mention of which nauseates every goldbug in the country, did their full part toward preserving the Union by furnishing bullion, which commanded a ready sale in the markets of Europe, to supply munitions of war. Then gold disappeared from sight and had to be enticed from its hiding places by a premium of from 100 to 200 per cent. Though the expectations of those who took an active part in making a State of Nevada have not been realized, yet there is no doubt but what Nevada has the natural resources to make it a great and prosperous commonwealth. If its principal industries were fostered and protected by the Government as are those of New England and Pennsylvania it would to-day be all that the most sanguine expected when it became a State in 1864.

SOMEWHAT EXPENSIVE.

The pugilists make their money-making schemes somewhat expensive for the States which they select for their encounters. A year or two ago when they arranged for a fight in Florida, the militia had to be called out to preserve the peace. This year Texas had to hold an extra session of the Legislature to prevent Corbett and Fitzsimmons from fighting in that state. Now the militia of Arkansas are under arms to keep out the pugilists.

As calling out the militia and convening State Legislatures is expensive some cheaper methods should be adopted to prevent prize fights. The business should be legalized or suppressed altogether. There should be no wishy-washy half-way measures, on the principle of Republican and Democratic resolutions on the silver question. If the Legislature of every State would make prize fighting a felony, punishable by fine and imprisonment, Corbett and Fitzsimmons will have to adopt other means of making a livelihood than that of pounding each other for a thousand dollars a round.

CHANDLER'S PREDICTION.

Senator Chandler of New Hampshire, formerly Secretary of the Navy, has become a prophet. In an article over his signature he says war between the United States and England is inevitable. It will result from British disregard of our direct interests. It will also be forced by British encroachments upon other nations all over the world. It will be fought by us, having Russia as an European ally. Millions of men and muskets will overrun Canada and England's commercial ships will be swept from the ocean.

It may have a quieting effect on the nerves of timid people to know that Prophet Chandler thinks it possible that the war may not begin for twenty years. That being the case, it may be averted altogether, for if the gold policy is permanently established in the United States, England in twenty years will own the country and there will have to be a revolution to free the people from the galling yoke of the Gold Trust.

THE TRIAL OF DURRANT.

CLOSING ARGUMENT OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY BARNES.

Convincing Proof of the Defendant's Guilt—The Court-Room Crowded.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 30.—District Attorney Barnes began the closing argument on behalf of the State in the trial of Theodore Durrant. The courtroom was crowded to its greatest capacity and close attention was paid to the speaker. Mr. Barnes spoke in part as follows: "The individual who perpetrated the hideous murder with which the defendant stands charged, and which has harrowed the soul and frozen the blood of this community is no ordinary criminal, and his crime in every aspect in which it may be considered is without a parallel. It was not committed under a blind and furious impulse to revenge some real or fancied wrong to his person, his property or his character, nor from motives of gain, nor in the commission of robbery, nor yet under the hot spur of jealousy, that hell of the injured lover. It was without the slightest provocation or apparent excuse or palliation. The assassin chose for his victim an innocent and helpless maiden, in years almost a child, almost a stranger in our city, a simple school girl temporarily residing with a relative, and engaged in the struggle to obtain an education as a teacher in the Normal School. She was undeveloped in mind, pure in life and thought, of a simple and unsuspecting nature, and presenting in body none of the qualities which are supposed to arouse the evil passions of the seducer and the libertine.

"For the scene of this dreadful assault the murderer selected an Evangelical Church, dedicated to the worship of God, a temple where the doctrines and the life of Jesus Christ were taught and illustrated in Sabbath assembly, in mid-week prayer meeting and social in gathering. He took the life of his victim, not with the savage mercy of the quick pistol, or the silent knife, but he tortured her with the lingering process of strangulation, driving his cruel fingers into the tender flesh of her slender throat; and so fiercely did he do his devil's work that the stigma of his crime remained until the discovery of her corpse, clearly discernable as the cause of her death, not only by the expert surgical examiner, but by the most unlearned observer. What other, if any, wrong was done to her before her soul exhaled and went to Heaven, we do not know. The advancement of natural decomposition baffled investigation and made knowledge impossible, but we know that either living, dying or dead she was taken by him up the steep stairs of the steeple of the belfry of the church, where he supported the poor body with blocks of wood and left it there to rot in nakedness and wither in the cool, western wind that swept through the lofty spire. He hid the remains where he believed they would remain undiscovered and have no promise of Christian burial. There he left her.

"She was dead, but he fancied himself safe from detection and exposure. The heaven-pointing spire of the Redeemer's church was his only confidant and accomplice. No human eye had witnessed his assault upon Blanche Lamont. No ear had heard her first shriek of terror and amazement as this monster fell upon her, or the last stifled moan of dying agony that preceded the awful silence of her final rest. None save the God whom he feared not, had seen him as he extended the naked and slender form on the belfry floor, hid the thin arm across the undeveloped bosom, propped the head and straightened the meagre body in the dust. Not a human being had beheld his retreat from the awful presence of the death which was his work, and the secret was safely locked in his own breast. There lay the speechless and untestifying corpse, and what was it now to give fear? It had been nothing but a girl after all, and concerning her there would be the old story to which he could help to give currency—the same old story of a vanished girl, a distracted family, an ineffective and perfunctory search among the houses of ill-repute, a reluctant conclusion that this little one, like others of Eve's daughters, had gone to her moral destruction; a picture turned to the wall, a name never spoken, and oblivion, personal and social, for poor Blanche Lamont. And he was right for the moment. The wrath of the God whose law he had violated and whose temple he had defiled seemed to slumber. The murderer went his guilty way with his undivulged crime, unscathed and unwhipped of justice, while his victim lay in the spire that pointed its slender finger to the sky, as if reproaching its ruler for his unmovable indignation."

Mr. Barnes then related the circumstances in connection with the discovery of Miss Lamont's body, and from the facts drew the conclusion that she was murdered by some member of the church who had keys to the church and in whom she had confidence. The murderer must also have been a man whose cunning was sufficient to enable him to stifle the natural feeling of

THE CONVENTION.

THE STATE LEAGUE ORGANIZATION COMPLETED.

Election of Officers and a Masterly Address by the President of the Association.

The Woman's Convention met yesterday morning and after devotional exercises a general discussion took place as to the best ways and means of carrying out the important work they had undertaken. The details were planned for the organization of local clubs and for work to be done in every part of the State. Most of the morning session was occupied in talking over and arranging these matters.

THE AFTERNOON

Session was taken up in the election of officers for the State League, the result being as follows: President, Mrs. J. R. Williamson of Austin; First Vice President, Miss H. K. Olapp of Reno; Second Vice President, Mrs. Cook of Sheridan; Recording Secretary, Mrs. P. Stanton Marshall of Reno; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Weller of Austin; Treasurer, Mrs. Elda A. Orr of Reno; Auditors, Mrs. Martin of Genoa and Miss Alice Ede of Winnemucca; Representative to National Association, Mrs. Rinckel of Carson; Superintendent of Press Work, Mrs. Annie Warren of Virginia; State Superintendent of Fair Work, Mrs. D. B. Boyd of Reno; Superintendent of Legislative Work, the President, Mrs. Williamson, with local clubs; Superintendent of Literary Work, Mrs. Blossom of Genoa.

THE EVENING SESSION

A larger audience assembled at the Opera House last evening than at any previous session of the Convention. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. T. Magill, after which there was singing by a quartette. The Secretary reported an enrollment of 89 members. Resolutions were adopted thanking the people of Reno for courtesies, also the press of the State, also especially thanking Mrs. Emma Smith DeVoe for her direction and aid in organizing the State League.

Mrs. Williamson, President of the State Association, then proceeded to address the audience. Her address covered every phase of the question and her arguments were based on the theory of the Constitution of the Government of the United States, and that women were amenable to the laws of their country, their property taxed the same as that of men, they were compelled to pay license to transact business, were subject to arrest, conviction and the penalties of the law and yet had not a word to say as to whom should administer or frame the laws of the land. She gave illustrations where women had been allowed to participate in public affairs and claimed that they had showed as much intelligence as men. She ridiculed the arguments made against woman suffrage, viz: that the homes would be a howling wilderness, the children neglected and the men compelled to wear buttonless shirts. She made a strong plea to the women of the State to stand together, and begged the fathers and sons, husbands and brothers, to help their wives, daughters, mothers and sisters to gain the victory so much desired.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Williamson's address Mrs. Emma Smith DeVoe made a few remarks, after which the delegates attended to some unfinished business and the Convention adjourned sine die.

Haverly's Minstrels.

Manager John Piper has finally completed arrangements with Haverly's Minstrel company, and that great organization will appear at McKisick's Opera House Wednesday, November 6th, presenting a brilliant program of modern high-class minstrelsy. The name of Haverly at the head of a minstrel organization is sufficient guarantee of its worth, and his entertainments are looked forward to with eager delight. This season's company has been selected with the utmost care, and only the very best of minstrel artists have been placed on the "roll of honor," among whom may be mentioned Billy Rice, Bert Shepard, E. M. Kayne, Chas. Ernst, the Emperors of Music, direct from London, and fully thirty others of equal merit.

Sale of seats at Lake's Book Store.

Liberal Propositions.

President Stubbs needs $3,000 to complete the Girls Dormitory building and is requesting subscriptions, subject to the action of the Legislature. Senator Jones and A. H. Manning put down $100 each and then Mr. Powning of the Water Co. offered to advance $500 if the banks would each put up $500, which would make $2,500 of the $3,000 in about a minute. So the Dormitory will be completed, and thereby save the State considerable money.

The Party To-night.

Donald Wier of Stockton, one of the pipers of the famous 94th Highlanders, arrived from the west last night and will be present at the Scotch entertainment and ball at the Armory Hall this evening. Highland flings, Scotch reels, sword dances and other novelties will be introduced. During the evening the Elite Glee Club will render several selections. The entertainment will close by everyone joining in singing Auld Lang Syne.

LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

Items From Here, There and Everywhere.

The largest sheep ranch on the American continent is one of 400,000 acres lying in the counties of Dimmit and Webb, Tex.

One ton of ore taken from the Keystone mine Robinson district, says the White Pine News, and shipped to Salt Lake City, assayed 278 ounces of silver, 15 per cent lead, and $3 12 in gold. It netted $174.

The News says quite a large body of ore has been uncovered on the Robinson mine in Robinson, that assays $51 in free gold. This mine is in the same belt as the Chinaman and Joana and future developments will be watched with much interest.

Why cannot we have a steam wagon run between Toano and Ely via Cherry Creek, asks the News. We have the best road in the country for such a wagon, and the distance 150 miles could be covered in two days instead of ten, as now by mule teams. Let us do something for faster transportation to and from the railroad.

The Belmont Courier says the large tank north of the Monitor-Belmont mill is now filled with water. If the goldbugs were not so greedy this mill would be kept running constantly on silver ores from the East Belmont and Spanish Belt mines, and the farmers of this section would find a profitable market in old Belmont once more.

The Independent says George Smith of Reno went up to Tascara last week and sized up the prospects of the camp. He returned yesterday well pleased with the future prospects of Tascara. He thinks it will not be long before there will be an awakening on the upper levels that will place the old camp in the front rank as a bullion producer.

The people of Nevada City, California, voted last Monday upon a proposition to issue $50,000 worth of bonds for a new water system. The election was hotly contested by the agents of the present water works, but the bond issue carried by a vote of 502 to 108. When the result was announced bells were rung, cannons were fired and bonfires lighted in all parts of the city.

O. W. Schweitzer, representing the New Era Gold Mining and Mill Company, has sent an order to San Francisco for the shipment of the electric milling plant, which is to be put up at Kennedy. The Silver State says the plant has been thoroughly tested and found satisfactory. It will be shipped at once, and Mr. Schweitzer thinks the mill will be ready to start up by the 1st of December.

Death of Mrs. Chappellor Derby.

News was received yesterday of the death of Mrs. Chappellor Derby at Martinez, Calif., on Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Derby has been in poor health for some time and had gone to California, hoping that the change of climate would benefit her. On Tuesday she grew rapidly worse and her sons, Larry and Charles, were telegraphed for, as well as her husband, Chappellor Derby, who was at his Humboldt ranch. The sons left here immediately but did not reach Martinez in time to see their mother before she died. Mr. Derby drove from his ranch, making 100 miles in ten hours, and reached here last night. J. A. Fitzgerald, who had been in telegraphic communication with friends of the family, met Mr. Derby last night and stopped him here. Larry arrived from the west last evening and Charles, accompanied by Mrs. Derby's sister, will arrive with the remains on Friday morning. Mrs. Derby had many friends in Reno and Virginia who will be shocked to hear of her sudden death. She was one of God's most noble women, ever ready to do a kind deed or give aid where it was required. The time and place of holding the funeral will be announced later.

Justice Court.

Judge Linn was occupied all day yesterday and at an evening session in the preliminary examination of A. A. Smith, charged with an attempt at poisoning Ed Laird and others on the Fox Mountains. Edward Laird and Amosico Echeberria were examined on the part of the prosecution during the afternoon. E. F. Carler is representing the State and J. F. Dennis and C. A. Jones the defendant.

District Court.

The case of the State vs. Peter Paderick occupied the attention of the District Court yesterday. The arguments of counsel were concluded in the afternoon, and Judge Cheney charged the jury and the case was submitted about 4 o'clock. After deliberating some three hours the jury brought in a verdict that the defendant was guilty as charged.

To Whom It May Concern.

THE TRIAL OF DURRANT.

timidity which always accompanies innocence and induced her to go along with him to the darkened church in which they both worshipped on Sunday. Such a man, he said, is Theodore Durrant. Only a monster capable of taking the life of an innocent girl, he said, could remain cool, impassive and almost defiant when accused of such a crime.

"Gentlemen," continued Barnes, "such a man is of such rare quality that if confronted at last with the proofs of his crime, whose recital has shocked all civilization, he could and he would, as he has done, sneeringly smile in the presence of the relics of his victim, torn by his hands from her stiffening body and exhibit neither passion nor emotion, neither sympathy nor regret for the unfortunate child he had brought to a premature grave. Such a man could well lie in jail awaiting his trial for murder and clothe his villainy with the mask of a pretended trust in the Jehovah whom he had defied and play the saint with verses and phrases stolen from Holy Writ. He could listen with grim complacency while his counsel struggled to weave a web of suspicion and accusation around one whom he knew to be innocent, and from the beginning to the end of his trial for the highest crime known to the law remain the same nevertheless, impassive, smiling villain.

"I am aware, gentlemen, that in a case of this character, equally with that where crimes less atrocious are laid to the charge of any creature, the case of the people must rest upon its strength, and not upon the weakness or the failure of counsel to prove that which he most confidently promised to establish. I have not the time, nor should you possess the patience to wait on me while I compare the bold and confident utterances of alleged facts exculpatory of his client, into which zeal has betrayed the advocate for the defendant, with the wretched and total failure of proof, if such comparison is obvious, you can make it for yourselves. I must observe, however, that I listened to the opening statement for the defense with observing interest. I was disappointed in but little. What I heard I expected to hear, save one thought which filled me with amazement and pain. The learned counsel who opened the defense for the defendant invoked the spirit of Blanche Lamont and voiced her thought by saying, 'let him go free, he harmed me not.' Gentlemen, like the counsel, I have felt her presence during all the long and tedious days of this important trial. I have seen her as she was on the 34 day of April last, as she left her school and her classes with her little burden of books and paper. I feel again that slender robe before me with her girlish form. Above it I see her sweet face, haloed by its wealth of hair, her gentle eyes, her smiling mouth dropping kindly words, bubbling up from the unpolished depths of a pure heart. I have seen her as she was when the defendant addressed her at the door of the Normal School.

"I have seen her every day, I see her now. There she stands behind him at this very hour; not praying for vengeance for her deep and remediless wrongs, not for the laws of retribution upon her murderer, but with uplifted hands and streaming eyes, praying that God will not put into your hearts, by the mockery of a verdict of guilty, to set free this monster to prey upon other gentle souls, pollute with vile hands the unsmiling snow of other children, and defy anew that God of justice, whose ministers you are."

In speaking of Durrant's defense, District Attorney Barnes said an alibi was the first favorite method of criminals to escape justice. "Durrant's testimony is a mass of contradictions from beginning to end," said Mr. Barnes. "Not only has he contradicted the testimony of the prosecution's witnesses, but he has contradicted the testimony of his own. I submit to you gentlemen that there is nothing in the testimony of the defendant or any witness presented by the defense to establish the alibi that the defense has tried to build up in this case."

Mr. Barnes said he believed it had been conclusively proved that Durrant had not attended Dr. Chubb's lecture on the afternoon of April 30, notwithstanding the fact that the prisoner is marked present on the roll-call. Even if no one else answered for Durrant, he said the roll-call was but a copy of the original record and had been proved to contain errors. If Durrant was at the lecture, he asked, why had not one student at least out of the class of seventy-four been brought forward to testify to the fact. Why had no witness been produced who saw Durrant on his way from college to the church?

The District Attorney said there was every reason for believing Dr. Graham's testimony to the effect that on April 20th Durrant told him he had no notes of the lecture and asked to borrow his. At that time Durrant had made a copy of Glazer's notes, but he wanted Graham's in order that he might make enough changes so that it would not be apparent that he had copied from Glazer's. Mr. Barnes commented on the fact that Dickinson did not testify that he had Durrant's notes in his possession on April 17th.

Mr. Barnes closed, with an eloquent appeal to the jury to avenge the murder of Blanche Lamont and protect the women and girls of the State by returning a verdict of murder in the first degree with the penalty of death.

Judge Murphy will charge the jury to-morrow morning, and a verdict is expected to-morrow night.

WILD FLOWERS.
Oh, beautiful blossoms, pure and sweet,
That bloom with dew from the country ways,
To me, at work in a city street,
You bring fair visions of bygone days—
Old days, when I hid in a mist of green
My watch spring's delicate buds unfold,
And all the riches I cared to glean Were daisy silver and buttercup gold.

"The time you come of a lowly race,
Nursed by the sunshine, fed by the showers,
And yet you are heirs to a nameless grace,
Which I fail to find in my hot-house flowers,
And you breathe on me with your honeyed Lips,
Till in thought I stand on the wind swept Tops,
Where the brown bees hum o'er the ferny dais,
Or ring faint peals on the hither bells.

I close my eyes on the crowded street,
I shut my ears to the city's roar,
And am out in the open with flying feet—
Off, off to your emerald haunts once more!
But the harsh wheels grate on the stones below,
And a sparrow chirps at the murky pane,
And my bright dreams fade in an overflow
Of passionate longing and tender pain.
—E. Matheson in Chambers' Journal.

A STately OLD MANSION.
The Home of Sarah Orne Jewett, the Novelist, at Berwick, Me.
I wonder if there is another such house in New England as the home of Sarah Orne Jewett, says a writer in the Boston Herald. I have seen many stately mansions that go back to the days before the Revolution—one in particular where General Gage was quartered in old Danvers, a town which is linked by witch threads to Berwick, and one with gambrel roof upon which a good dame and her cronies climbed to be out of reach of husbandly authority while they drank tea forbidden to patriots until the tax was removed—but I have never seen a living place at once so modern and so reminiscent of 1730 or days younger still. In its great rooms filled with old mahogany and warmed by huge tiled fireplaces it would be easy to forget that the gaudalows, with their high peaked sails like great birds' wings, do not yet sail down the river from the landing wharves in fleets of tens and twenties to Portsmouth, with their loads of pine planks and boards to be exchanged for East Indian rum, tobacco and molasses or for Russian iron, duck or cordage, or for such priceless old glass and silver and china as came from unknown ports and now peep out wonderingly upon nineteenth century cushions and pictures and bric-a-brac from their deep set cupboards and shelves.

"I found these things here," Miss Jewett says, "and I hope to leave them when I go into the unknown." If one had one's choice of ancestors, it would be impossible to pick out better than those who chose the elaborate cupboards, all carved by hand with intricate pains, and the high paneling of the parlors, and the broad window sills, and the flowered wall paper, still bright and fresh, though of a pattern on which Marrie Antoinette might have set the seal of her approval when she fitted up the little Trianon.

Could Not Make Tibet.
Mr. Wilson relates an amusing story of an officer who determined to enter Chinese Tibet by stratagem. This officer managed to cross the frontier at night, and so escaped the frontier guard.
Next day, however, while he was journeying deeper into Tibet the Tibetan soldiers overtook him and informed him that as the country was unsafe, because of robbers, they would go with him in order to protect him, to which arrangement the traveler was compelled to agree.
In a few hours they came to a river, which was crossed by a rope bridge, in order to show that the bridge was safe, and then the officer got into the basket and was pulled along by the Tibet-ans. Suddenly, however, they ceased pulling and left the Englishman hanging in midair above the rushing torrent.
In vain the traveler shouted to the Tibetans to pull. They merely smoked and nodded their heads. The hours passed, and still the officer hung above the torrent. At last the Tibetans agreed to pull him back if he would promise to leave Tibet immediately. This of course he was compelled to do and took his departure from the forbidden land.

All Weathers Served Dr. Johnson.
Dr. Johnson stoutly proclaimed the notion of the effect of weather on the mind. "To temperance," he wrote, "every day is bright, and every hour is propitious to diligence." Johnson, however, was little given to analyze the influences of nature, or any other influences, upon himself. And it may well be that this disposition on his part was in the spirit of the stoics and in defiance of his own feelings, to which he disdained to give way. It seemed to him a sorry thing that "a being endowed with reason" should "resign his powers to the influences of the air and live in dependence on the weather and the wind."—Temple Bar.

Huxley Chide Tyndall.
Tyndall was, I think, one of the earliest members of the Alpine club, but he succeeded after an unfortunate dispute, which arose in connection with his own successful attempts on the Matterhorn and Mr. Whymper's ascent of that peak, and it was not till three or four years before his death that he again attended one of the annual dinners of the club, where he and Professor Huxley were among the guests of the evening.

Both created, but in the particular art of after dinner speaking Tyndall was not the equal of his brilliant rival, and his labored and rather egotistical inter-ferences contrasted unfavorably with the delicate persiflage of Huxley, who, by the way, chaffed him numerically on that occasion as being one of the goats and not one of the sheep—the goats who climbed the arid rocks, while the sheep, among whom Huxley reckoned himself, browsed contentedly on the rich pastures below.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Large Forests.
Canada has a forest in the Hudson bay and Labrador region 1,000 by 1,500 miles in extent, while that of the Amazon basin is calculated to be about 2,100 by 1,300 miles. Central Africa has a forest region of 3,000 miles from north to south, of an unknown depth, and the vast pine, larch and cedar forests of Siberia are 8,000 miles from east to west and 1,000 miles from north to south. The natives call them "places where the mind is lost."

Definition of a Name.
An amusing account is given of the definition of a name. "A man named Halpin lived in Dublin at the end of the last century. Having been very successful in business, his children persuaded him to change his name to more dignified one, which he did by dropping the last letter.

In the course of time the orthography was also changed, and when the man died he was buried as Mr. Halpin. The fortunes of the family increased still further, and the son soon dropped the H.
The next transition was an equally easy one, and he who had run the streets as little Kenny Halpin came out as Kenneth MacAlpin, the descendant of a hundred kings.—Boston Traveller.

Spider Venom Not Deadly.
A recent article by an entomologist authoritatively contains the following: "The tarantula of the west and south, the red bellied spider of New Zealand, the hopata of Italy and several other species of the spider family have the reputation of being deadly venomous. The fact is all spiders are more or less poisonous, but none of them is deadly. I doubt if there is an authentic case on record of a healthy human being dying from a spider's bite."

The American Language.
The prevalence of lower jaw rigidity among our men of all callings and degrees of culture is amazing. The following report of a conversation in a street car between two prominent, well educated business men does them no injustice:

"Wych." (How are you?)
"Whahet." (How are you?)
"Ino dek." (Fine day.)
"S, uh call at a." (Yes, I call it so.)
"Wah thing genl?" (How are things in general?)
"Wah, wah don all, tunch, tunch; sar kee this firm these tie." (Well, we're doing a little, not much, though; it's hard to keep things stirring these times.) "Sah, Bout rye. Fine sah." (That's so. You're about right. I find it so.)—

Where Millions Are Made.
There is a gray, severe building towering up from the foot of Broadway.
There are no signs upon its walls. Its windows are not lettered. It preserves an air of mystery. The only outward clue to the solution of it is the rubber document, for in the intricacies of its design one can cipher the letters "S. O.
Co." The building looks toward the North river and over the vast oil yards and refineries of the Kill von Kull. It is the headquarters of the most powerful trade combination in America—the Standard Oil company. It is here that the Rockefeller brothers toil and spin their millions.—New York Advertiser.

Rubinstein and Tivoli.
Rubinstein was unaccountably inaccurate at times. People who hold scores through these long programmes could easily find that out. He not only considered even Beethoven, but he would invent Bach. What he invented was probably quite as good as what he happened to forget and always extremely interesting. Still, it was not note for note, and that is what the dillards glowered over. Below was more accurate, but even below forgot or manufactured a bar or two occasionally. But there, if spots, were spots in the sun, and certainly all Rubinstein did or left undone serve but to accentuate his individuality and display his genius in new and startling lights.—Portsmouth Review.

A Story of Thackeray.
There is a story of Thackeray, shortly after the publication of "Vanity Fair," dining with a friend and receiving an introduction to his next neighbor, "Captain Crawley of the Life Guards." Thackeray looked greatly impoverished, scarcely opened his lips to this gentleman and afterward told his best in an ungrateful tone that "the life of a joke as well as any man, but there was a time and a place for all things." No joking allusion to a character of his novel had, however, been designed or perpetrated. The fellow guest actually was a Captain Crawley and held a commission in the Life Guards.

The Gulf Stream.
According to Captain Murray, the gulf stream runs up hill. He shows that after emerging from the gulf of Mexico this famous current of warm water broadens out toward the north and becomes correspondingly more and more shallow. Thus, its depth off the island of Bermuda is about 200 fathoms, while off Cape Hatteras it has shallowed to about 100 fathoms. He calculates the current at ten inches to the mile.
